Sixth Auditor McGrew has submitted his annual report to the secretary of the treasury. The only recommendation the report contains which has not already been published, is that appropriations be made for fifteen additional elegis and one chief clerk, at a salary of $2100 per annum. In conclusion he says: "The accounts of the postoffice department, numbering over $4,000,000, and involving over $2,000,000, have been promptly settled. The collections made and the liabilities paid with loss are so slight as to be scarcely approximately approximately set as well frown down all schemes looking to a special session. True, the senate will have to be confirm his appointments, but there is no necessity for the lower branch to be prematurely set at work grinding away at legislation. The senate can get through all that is required of it in a month or six weeks, and the country will then have a rest until December of next year. The small-fry politicians can really make him the excuse for convening the new congress, but if he inwith loss are so slight as to be scarcely ap-

Now, it is the deliberate intent of the Republicans to inflict a special session of the forty-seventh congress upon the country, for the sole purpose of securing the few offices under the control of the house of rep.sesentatives. The excuse for such session will be the defeat, through dilatory tactics, of either the bill fixing the apportionment for representatives in congress, or through the failure of congress to provide a bill for the payment of deputy marshals of elections.
